

PCC111. Histories of Paris

Professor Christina von Koehler

Lecture: Mondays 2:00-3:30

Site Visits: Tuesdays 1:30-3:00 (Group 1) or 4:00-5:30 (Group 2)

This class examines how the history of political ideology and social conflict in France since the Middle Ages has been embodied in the urban landscape of Paris. More than in any other city, the meaning, message, and significance to state and nation of most Parisian sites was -- and continues to be -- violently contested. We will look at the histories of the conception, construction, and public perception of Parisian monuments and place their stories within the larger context of the development of the French state and of French national identity. Major events of French history form the chronological backbone for this course, with emphasis placed on the forces that literally shaped some of the city's most emblematic neighborhoods and monuments. The readings are selected from works by specialists in French political, urban, and social history; and the class will include weekly visits to sites in Paris, as the student learns to "read" architecture and to use the city as a rich primary source for historical analysis.

Be advised: while no prior knowledge of French history is required, a high level of commitment to learning about France is. All of the writing for this class demands careful consideration of both readings for class and information given during site visits. This is not a class for tourists, but a class that engages in the complex history of Paris and France. You will be evaluated on the richness and clarity of your engagement with that history.

COURSE MATERIALS

Colin Jones, Paris: Biography of a City. (London: Penguin, 2004)

Course reader

English-language booklets [Itinéraire readers] have been put on reserve:

The Pantheon; The Arch of Triumph; The Palais Garnier; The Eiffel Tower.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

*Class participation and Analytic response papers (40%)

Students are expected to have done all the readings and to participate both in class and to comment at the weekly site visits. You may not ever again have the opportunity to actually take what you read about Paris to the streets. The meeting points for the walks are indicated below. Arrive on time, do not expect me and your classmates to wait for you. (Call the cell # if you are lost).

The visits are not optional, as they form the core of the class. Therefore be prepared to do a lot of walking, and to take notes, no matter what the weather conditions might be. (Paris can get very cold, windy, and rainy. Pack sneakers and warm socks as well as a decent coat).

Your analytic response papers – 2-3 typed double-spaced pages – will make the connections between site visits and the readings. Each one should synthesize your impressions of the places we visit, to reflect upon them in terms of old and new political issues, and to raise questions for further debate. Each student must hand in a total of 4 responses (ie. you may chose not to write about some of the site visits).

These are due in double-spaced print-outs – on the Monday after the related visit. Those sent via e-mail will not be accepted. A first one must be submitted by Oct. 4 at the latest.

One 3-4 page paper on a “monument” you have chosen. (10%)

Just what is a monument? A building, a book, a person, a street....? Argue why the site/object/person you have chosen – and researched – merits being included in this category.

This paper is due, at the latest, by Week 10 (ie. Nov 22).

* Midterm (25%)

* Final (25%)
